A BRIEF OVERVIEW OF SANTA BARBARA WINE COUNTRY

By Sandy X. Mayuga, Wine Touring Chair, JOCLA

OK. Let’s be perfectly honest from the starting line. A HUGE attraction for attending the International Jaguar Festival (IJF) in Santa Barbara, CA is the proximity to the world-class wine country of the Central Coast of California and the opportunity to visit the vineyards, tasting rooms and wine-making facilities in and north of Santa Barbara. There ... we’ve admitted it ... and doesn’t it feel and sound good! Can’t you taste the fruit forward varietals already?

With over 100 wineries and over 50 varietals grown in the Santa Ynez AVA,¹ you are sure to find wines and wineries that you will love. Some of these facilities are less than a mile walks or bicycle ride from HILTON SANTA BARBARA BEACHFRONT RESORT Headquarters of the IJF. The Santa Ynez Valley AVA, the home to four associated AVA appellations, can be visited after a scenic 40-minute drive passing ranches, vineyards, the largest lake in the region and a quaint Danish village. The olde’ Jag won’t event break a sweat. And for those die-hard enthusiasts who want an opportunity to “test” the backroads to northern Santa Barbara County and the Santa Maria AVA, take a one hour fifteen-minute drive through some of the prettiest vineyard and quintessential California oak tree country anywhere.

California “Driving Under the Influence” Laws

No advice about enjoying wine country is complete without mentioning that California has some of the most stringent impaired driving laws in the country, whether the influence is alcohol or any other substance that impairs safe driving. Like in all states, California’s penalties are severe. The California Highway Patrol and the Santa Barbara County Sheriff’s Department patrol wine country. But you can enjoy Santa Barbara Wine Country safely and responsibly with a little planning and restraint. Take turns being the designated driver. You don’t need to taste at every winery in every AVA – plan your trip to limit the number of wineries you visit in a day. How about sharing or splitting a tasting with your spouse or a partner? Wineries routinely accommodate that. After all, the idea is to taste the wine and enjoy its aroma, nuances and flavor -- not get “snockered.” Perhaps enjoy driving on a “dry” day and share a coach or limo or designate a non-drinking driver on a “wet” day. The JCNA and JOCLA cannot be responsible for the consequences of your alcohol consumption. By planning ahead, you can enjoy Santa Barbara Wine Country and still have fun and be responsible!

The following is a small “tasting” of the main areas of Santa Barbara Wine Country, including some advance intelligence and resources to help you plan your visit to SB wine country and some personal insights and recommendations.²

Where is Santa Barbara Wine Country?

² These are nothing more than this writer’s personal favorites based on my experience. I’ve visited the area and its wineries since turning 21 and graduating from UC Santa Barbara in 1970. Back then and for many years thereafter, tastings were free. Not now ... but the quality and sophistication of the wines has improved astronomically!

A map of the AVAs of Santa Barbara County. Most of the AVAs are about a 40-minute drive from Santa Barbara. There are a number of tasting rooms and some wine-making facilities within a mile of The Fess Parker Santa Barbara Hotel, IJF Hq.

The unique, transverse nature of the valleys of Santa Barbara Wine Country provides a patchwork quilt of micro-climates and terrains, resulting in one of the most diverse grape growing regions in the world. Unlike the rest of North America, the valleys in the Pacific coastline, including the coastal Santa Ynez Mountain range, run east-west rather than north-south. Because of this geologic oddity, the ocean breezes sweep eastward, channeled by the hills and mountains that ring the region. Heading east, the temperatures are warm during the day and very cool during the night, whereas the vineyards that lie westward toward the ocean enjoy a mild and moderate climate, with early morning and late-night fogs. Coupled with unique soils of ancient beaches and sea beds containing limestone and other minerals, the Santa Ynez Valley is a near-perfect place for a wide variety of wine grape varieties.

Tip No. 1: Many of the vintners cultivate or purchase grapes from several AVAs in the region and from even AVAs further north in California. Although a vintner's wine tasting room or winery may be in a certain AVA, that doesn't mean the vintner only makes wines from that AVA. For example, one of my favorite wineries is in the Santa Rita Hills AVA which is the area best known for its "cool" varietals of Pinot Noir and Chardonnay. But he owns and harvests vineyards of Cabernet Sauvignon grapes in the much hotter Happy Canyon AVA in the eastern end of the Santa Ynez Valley and in my opinion, makes the best Cabernet Sauvignon from the Santa Ynez Valley AVA. Another vintner may blend just a "smidgen" of Chardonnay grapes from the Santa Maria AVA into his Santa Rita Hills Chardonnay for a little different "structure or character." So regardless of where a winery is located, it's best to study each winery's offerings and to know what wines are offered and from where its grapes hail.

Tip No. 2: One of the most enjoyable experiences is packing a snack or picnic – as simple or as complicated as you want to make it – and enjoying the serenity of Santa Barbara Wine Country. Many tasting rooms and wineries have picnicking areas in beautiful woodland settings. And fresh fruits are available from local roadside vendors. Enjoy the area!

What's closest to IJF HQS.?

Although not an AVA, just a few blocks west of IJF Hqs. is Santa Barbara's The Funk Zone (or just the "Zone"). It includes most of what's called The Urban Wine Trail. Begun by hip visionaries intent on redevelopment of an old warehouse and industrial area -- bordered by the ocean and Santa Barbara's scenic beaches and marina on the south side and the Amtrak station and Highway 101 to the north -- the Funk Zone has now blossomed into the hippest area of downtown Santa Barbara. It features several wine tasting rooms and has become the center of the Santa Barbara's "happening" music and artist scenes set among buildings decorated with graffiti murals and contemporary art pieces. Surfboard shapers, winemakers and up-and-coming chefs all practice their crafts here. You can visit art galleries, shop vintage and modern clothing and home goods, lots of fun, food and drink and enjoy a five-star dinner or a fantastic delicatessen.

For wine aficionados who don't want to "drink and drive," this is a perfect place to visit. You don't have to drive there. You can get there by bicycle or a leisurely walk. There are over 20 tasting rooms featuring Santa Barbara Wines. And many the quality winemakers from the Santa Ynez Valley AVA have spoiled patrons by offering their wines and tastings in The Funk Zone without having to drive to the Valley.

My favorites on The Urban Wine Trail? Well having a millennial son who works in the region and lives a few blocks from the FUNK Zone means that we are "forced" to visit the FUNK Zone on each visit. Two of my favorites are just a few blocks north of FUNK Zone closer to where he lives. Carr Vineyards & Winery <https://carrwinery.com/> and Jaffurs Wine Cellars www.jaffurswine.com. Both are great examples of simply well-made wines ... but in an active industrial area. The Carr Winery has a super delightful tasting room with entertainment from Thursday through Saturday nights. I love his Pinot Noirs, Cab Franc, Sangiovese and blend. At Jaffurs you visit where the wine is made and the tasting area is a table with a few bottles... but the wines. Known for Rhone varietals, but my favorite is its Viognier.

In the FUNK Zone itself, I recommend two wineries from the Santa Rita Hills AVA: Lafond Winery and Sanford Winery & Vineyards. Both are known for their Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, Riesling and Pinot Noir ... and for good reason. However because both of these wineries have wonderful tasting rooms in the SR Hills that are in a beautiful country setting and well worth visiting if you choose to drive to the SRH AVA, while in the Funk Zone for something a little different you might instead want to visit Kunin Wines (Viognier, Syrah and Zinfandel) and Ca del Grevino (Pinot Noir, Grenache, Chardonnay, Syrah, Dolcetto and Riesling), a vintner with grapes from the Santa Maria AVA. Avoid the longer drive and taste it here. There are other tasting rooms in the Zone that are well worth visiting.

The Urban Wine Trail: www.urbanwinetrailsb.com; <https://santabarbaraca.com/itinerary/the-urban-wine-trail/>

Tip No. 3: Drive courteously and cautiously ... the “locals” do and would appreciate your driving the same way. Don’t be in a rush. This is an agricultural area and you never know when critters of all shapes and sizes may dart across the road!

Go West ... to the Santa Rita Hills AVA

This could be my favorite AVA ... except for the others. In the western most part of Santa Barbara Wine Country, a typical day in the Santa Rita Hills AVA (SRH) starts with marine layer clouds and fog, which burn off by 10 a.m. Then two or three hours of mild sunshine until the on-shore winds pick up, cooling things down again. This maritime influence, combined with the sedimentary soils with patches of limestone is the perfect place to grow the appellation's hallmark Chardonnay and Pinot Noir, but other “cool” varietals are also grown.

My recommended “Don’t Miss” SRH wineries all have lovely tasting rooms in beautiful settings in the Santa Rita Hills: Babcock Winery <https://babcockwinery.com>, Melville Vineyards & Winery melvillewinery.com and Dierberg Star Lane Vineyards <https://dierbergvineyard.com>. And if you don’t visit them in The Funk Zone, then by all means visit Lafond Winery <https://www.lafondwinery.com> and Sanford Winery & Vineyards www.sanfordwinery.com. Babcock and Melville share the same driveway and are located on Highway 246 about 9 miles west of Buellton and Highway 101. Dierberg is located just off Highway 246 about 6 miles west of Buellton. Lafond and Sanford are also located close to one another on Santa Rosa Road, the other main road in the SRH. Other very good SRH wineries: Alma Rosa (on the way towards La Fond and Sanford) is known for its white wines and Mosby (close to Buellton and on the way to Alma Rosa) specializes exclusively in Italian varietals.

Los Olivos District ... What are olives doing in wine country?

The Mediterranean climate of Santa Barbara County and much of California is as conducive to growing wine as growing olives ... much like Spain, Italy and other countries along the Mediterranean. The Los Olivos AVA is an area where ancient rivers deposited loose soil, rocks and other sediment between the Purisima Hills above Solvang and the western flank of the Happy Canyon area. It has a relatively uniform topography (generally flat), geology and soil profile. It is bounded by the townships of Ballard, Santa Ynez, Los Olivos,³ and Solvang. This is an area surrounded by vineyards, fruit orchards and horse farms. Grapes grown in the area include principally the Bordeaux varietals (Sauvignon Blanc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc and Merlot) and Rhone varietals (Syrah and Grenache), with some Italian and Spanish varietals.

What do I recommend in the Los Olivos AVA area? The charming town of Los Olivos – with a towering flagpole in the middle of a small roundabout as its main intersection – is home to over 30 wine tasting rooms. Why not minimize your driving by parking in the area and walking to your wine tastings? In town, in addition to Coquelicot <https://www.coquelicotwines.com/>, I recommend Qupè <http://www.qupe.com/>, Stolpman <http://www.stolpmanvineyards.com/>, Andrew Murray Vineyards <http://andrewmurrayvineyards.com/>, Bien Nacido www.biennacidovineyards.com/, Nielsen by Byron <http://www.nielsonwines.com/> and Blair Fox Cellars www.blairfoxcellars.com/. Outside of the town of Los Olivos itself, I very highly recommend Blackjack Ranch (Robert Parker calls Blackjack "... the premier producer of Bordeaux varietals on the Central Coast") <https://www.blackjackranch.com/> and Rideau, specializing in Rhone varietals <https://rideauvineyard.com/>. And if you didn't visit Carr Vineyards & Winery in The Urban Wine Trail, then by all means visit Carr in the town of Santa Ynez.

Tip No. 4: Be sure to check online for the days and hours of operation for the wineries/tasting rooms you want to visit. Also, some may require advance reservations for larger groups and some may have tastings by appointment only.

³ Los Olivos will be the site of a special outdoor dining and wine tasting experience at the Coquelicot Tasting Room and Gardens on Saturday November 4th. See the details in Special Events.

With a name like Happy Canyon the wines must be great! Right?

Positively Yes! Located in the far eastern edge of the Santa Ynez Valley AVA, the Happy Canyon AVA delves into the San Rafael Mountains just northwest of Lake Cachuma. Being inland means a significantly warmer climate that ensures complete maturation for later ripening varieties. The rolling terrain, high slopes and varied soils of this region are best suited for growing Bordeaux varieties like Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Petit Verdot and Sauvignon Blanc, creating rich, concentrated wines. Syrah and other Rhône varieties and Sangiovese also flourish here.

I have little experience visiting wineries in the Happy Canyon AVA, but much more experience with vintners who make wine from grapes purchased from the vineyard owners in this AVA. For example, watch for vintners who proudly proclaim their Cabernet Sauvignon is made from grapes from the Happy Canyon AVA. You'll be glad you did.

Tip No. 5: Map your route before going. Try to be as efficient as possible and group your visits in an area. Don't try to do too much in a day. Relax!

Ballard Canyon: In the heart of the Santa Ynez Valley AVA

Ballard Canyon, one of the newest AVAs, lies where the unique soils and climate of the Canyon create a great environment for producing distinctive wines from red grapes such as Syrah, Grenache, Sangiovese, Cabernet Sauvignon and Cabernet Franc and white grapes such as Sauvignon Blanc, Viognier and Roussanne.

Notable wineries in the vicinity: Boutique winery Rusack Vineyards, noted for varietals and blends featuring Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, Syrah, Sangiovese, Zinfandel and Cabernet Sauvignon <https://www.rusack.com/>; Jorian Hill, noted for Rhone Varietals and Rhone blends and Syrah <http://www.jorianhill.com/>; and Stolpman Vineyards, noted for Syrah, Sangiovese, Petite Syrah, Sauvignon Blanc, Roussane and Viognier. Decisions, decisions, decisions!

Tip No. 6: Tasting rooms charge for tastings. They generally range from $12 to $20. Some tasting rooms offer tasting of the vintner's "premium" wines for an additional charge

Santa Maria Valley, Los Alamos and the Foxen Canyon Wine Trails

Western hospitality meets world class wine in the Santa Maria and Los Alamos area. The transverse nature of the Santa Maria Valley lends itself to a diverse range of wines produced here. Heading south from Santa Maria, take a leisurely drive along Foxen Canyon to Los Olivos or drive down the 101 and stop in the Western town of Los Alamos. One of the most established areas, Santa Maria Valley is home to fresh produce, bucolic vistas and of course – Santa Maria Style BBQ!

Some great wineries on these trails. My favorites? Kenneth Volk Vineyards – superb winemaker noted for Syrah, Pinot Noir and Albarino <https://www.volkwines.com/>; Rancho Sisquoc, principal varieties include Cabernet Franc, Cabernet Sauvignon, Chardonnay, Malbec, Merlot, Pinot Noir, Sauvignon Blanc, Sylvaner, Syrah and Riesling; many other area vintners buy their grapes from the vineyards of Rancho Sisquoc <https://www.ranchosisquoc.com/>; and Andrew Murray, the same winery that has a tasting room in Los Olivos, grows these varieties: Viognier, Grenache Blanc, Roussanne, Grenache, Cinsault, Mourvedre, and Syrah. One of the earliest vintners in the area. <http://andrewmurrayvineyards.com/>

Tip No 7: Be aware that tasting rooms reserve the right to refuse to serve over imbibers or anyone they believe to be impaired.
